Framing Hammer

A framing hammer is essentially the same as a regular claw hammer except: it is longer, heavier, it may have a ridged, milled hammer face, it may also have a flatter claw.

Ripping Hammer

A rip hammer is an all around utility tool capable of dozens of tasks besides driving nails. Rip hammers have a straight claw instead of a curved claw.

Fiberglass Handle

A Ball Pein Hammer is a hammer with two ends on the head, one that is round and the other flat. Sometimes called a machinist's hammer, a ball pein is a good choice for working with metal. Its steel head is harder than that of a claw hammer, so is less likely to chip on impact. Ball pein hammers are commonly used to drive cold chisels, set rivets, and bend and shape metal.
